Many British students take a 'gap year' after they leave school and before they go to university. Some students decide to travel in this year. It's a great time to visit other countries, meet new people and have lots of adventures. It's also a good time to get some work experience. There are lots of organizations that help young people do voluntary work in Africa, India or South America. This can be a real opportunity to experience a new culture while you get some valuable work experience.
