Presenter

Welcome to our weekly look at the world of cinema. First, we're going to hear from our entertainment reporter, Holly Thomson, about a special film programme for teenagers. Holly, can you tell us a bit about Fresh Films?

Reporter

Yes, Fresh Films is a programme which started over ten years ago to give teenagers experience in film-making. It gives access to training, equipment and connections to help make their dreams come true. Their mission is to develop teenagers' talent and potential.

Presenter

So, I imagine that teenagers watch professional film-makers working on a film set.

Reporter

The professionals guide and lead the teenagers on the film set, but it's the teenagers themselves who are responsible for all aspects of the film production. It's a hands-on, practical programme.

Presenter

How exciting! How do you get a place on the programme?

Reporter

Well, it's open to anyone aged 13–18. All you have to do is explain to the organizers why they should choose you. If they choose you, you'll spend a week working with a team of teenage film-makers to make a real short film. Some of the past participants now have careers in film. Some teenage film-makers even got to work with Hollywood celebrities.

Presenter

And do you need experience to enter the programme?

Reporter

No, absolutely no experience is necessary. You just need to love films and film-making. You will also like working in a team.

Presenter

*Tell me about The Stream.*

Reporter

After a decade of making short films, Fresh Films decided to do something different and they created a feature-length film ...

Presenter

That's a full-length film, isn't it?

Reporter

*Yes, that's right. Groups of teenage film-makers worked together to film and produce scenes from a full-length feature film. The result was The Stream.*

Presenter

And the film was released on iTunes as well as in the cinema.

Reporter

Yes, and all the money raised from ticket sales and downloads was donated to charity.

Presenter

Thanks Holly. Maybe we'll see more feature-length films from Fresh Films in the future. And now ...
